MUGENDI EMMANUEL MACHARIA

STUDENT

Third-year Industrial Chemistry student at the University of Nairobi with strong laboratory, analytical, and problem-solving skills. Experienced in handling chemical experiments, data analysis, and technical reporting through academic coursework. Passionate about industrial processes, quality control, and continuous learning, with growing skills in Python and digital tools to enhance efficiency and innovation. Seeking an industrial attachment opportunity to apply scientific knowledge in a practical manufacturing or research environment.

WORK EXPERIENCE

Intern co-op bank kenya

During my time at Co-op Bank, I actively participated in promoting banking services to clients, encouraging them to open accounts and familiarize themselves with available financial products. I engaged directly with customers, explaining account features and assisting them with the account opening process, which strengthened my communication and persuasion skills. Beyond client interaction, I supported the branch team with administrative tasks, ensuring smooth day-to-day operations and accurate record-keeping. This experience enhanced my ability to work under pressure, manage time efficiently, and operate professionally in a customer-focused environment, while also giving me insight into banking operations and financial service delivery.
